History 348 Research Guide for: Stereotyping Indian Cities
Last updated January 20, 2015. See newest version at lfc.edu/live/files/2556-history348

Find and cite books and scholarly articles on the history, architecture, events, and famous people/leaders of New Delhi, Agra, Varanasi (Benaras), Allahabad, Lucknow, Jaipur, Ahmedabad, Hyderabad, Mysore, Aurangabad, Bhopal, and Calcutta.

Can I use Wikipedia and Google?
- Wikipedia and Google are useful to identify key dates and terms, and to find alternate spellings of cities, famous people/leaders, monuments/architecture, and events.
- Enter the variant spellings connected with OR (in all-caps) into databases and the library catalog. For example: Varanasi OR Benares OR Banaras OR Kashi

Find books ➔ Search for books first because interlibrary loan takes at least 3 “business” days.
- Search the I-Share catalog at vufind.carli.illinois.edu/all/vf-lfc
  - Check the box to “Hide eResources to which I don't have access.”
  - Put quotation marks around phrases or exact titles, for example: “18th century”
  - Set limits: In the right column limit Language to English and/or select a Topic or Subject.
  - If you find a book on your city, click the “Topic” to see more books like it.
- Ask a librarian for help if you cannot find books on your city.

Find journal articles
1. Go to the library home page at lfc.edu/library
2. Click the Articles/Databases tab
3. Click Popular databases and select one of these databases:
   - Historical Abstracts
   - JSTOR
   - Google Scholar
   - Academic Search Complete
   - In Historical Abstracts, first limit:
     - Language: English
     - Historical Period: 1200 CE to 1950 CE
     - Published Date: 1980-
   - In any EBSCO database (including Historical Abstracts) only email permalinks!
   - In other databases:
     - Limit by language, publication date, and include search terms like medieval or 13th century or colonial.

Get journal articles
- If an article does not link directly to full-text, click “Check Lake Forest College” or [Find It ⊗] to get the complete article online, in print in the library, or by interlibrary loan.
- Interlibrary loan requests can arrive in an hour or may take more than a week.
- Check your email for a link to your requested article. Download and save it before your access expires!

Tools to create bibliographies and cite sources
- A Pocket Style Manual (“the Hacker guide”) is available for 2-hour check-out at the library circulation desk if you don’t have your copy with you, or online: bcs.bedfordstmartins.com/resdoc5e
- Chicago Manual of Style: chicagomanualofstyle.org/16/contents.html
- Library website Citation Guides:
